Dear parent or guardian,

Reading books is an amazing, engaging way to work on speech sounds. Attached you will find the names of picture books that are perfect for targeting sounds your child is working on! Try to find some of these books at your local library or bookstore. Read them out loud to your child and talk about the pictures. Have your child produce the sound in words, phrases, and sentences to talk about the story!

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call or email. Thanks for helping your child be the best communicator possible!
